

From the Division Commanding General

Welcome to Fort Campbell, the world's premier power projection platform and home of 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault). On behalf of all our Soldiers, family members and civilian employees, let me extend a warm "Air Assault" welcome as you join us for "Week of the Eagles 2004."

This is a truly special Week of the Eagles. Most of our Soldiers recently returned from our division's latest Rendezvous with Destiny. These young men and women, called the "new greatest generation" by Tom Brokaw, performed superbly under difficult and dangerous conditions. They not only liberated a country and gave hope to people who had lost hope, they also helped rebuild the country's infrastructure, governmental institutions and security forces.

While the division's accomplishments have been many, they have come at a heavy price. We must never forget the sacrifices of the Screaming Eagles who gave the "last full measure of devotion" during this deployment. Their service, their valor, and their example will remain an inspiration to all Americans as our Nation's Soldiers continue to help the Iraqi people make the most of the opportunity our troopers have given to them.

We also must not forget the sacrifices of our military spouses and families during the deployment. Their support was critical to the success of our mission. But for the families of those many division Soldiers who did not return, no words of sympathy can be enough. We must continue to support those families and honor our fallen.

Finally, on behalf of every Soldier and family member, let me personally thank every veteran, retiree, school, church, business, local neighbor and citizen who sent cards and packages to our Soldiers or provided support to our families. Your assistance meant a tremendous amount to us, and we are very grateful.

Again, we hope that each of you has a safe and very enjoyable visit to Fort Campbell this week. Air Assault!!
